"Every company has a vision, a mission, and a niche market. It is my job as a highly trained and experienced creative to bring vitality, individuality, and complexity to all branded and fortified company directives through means of aesthetic identity. My connection with key manufacturers, developers, and the intense processes that are linked to a create solid flow of production from initial concept to final phase allow for easy communication and streamlined coordination for each singular project. Questions that typically arise throughout production process are easily answered preliminary to moving assembly which ultimately acts as a solution before a problem can occur. Standard knowledge of pre-production processes such as color separations to post-production considerations as social marketing tools make meeting deadlines such as synchronizing seasonal lines a seamlessly organized operation." ~ N Beery

Artist Nick Beery aka BeeryMethod works in a vast array of creative disciplines including traditional fine art, digital photography, illustration, and design. His approach to all creative forms is to bring a unique fusion of techniques which manifest highly creative and visually striking images for print and products.. A deep background in information artistry and product design with apparel companies, record labels, action sports, and commercial media make his counter-culture and pop-icon aesthetics available on a multitude of media.

Nick is considered a surrealist, a eclectic visionary, and a promoter of urban culture and movements. His comprehensive body of paintings can be found in galleries across the US and in private collections abroad. Beery's method is a constant investigation of traditional media and digital tools which coalesce to break ground, manifest trends, and consistently give edge to his market. Beery's passion spills like hot lava onto his canvases, burning prolific impressions onto the attention of viewers and the commercial art world. His designs are being worn, skated, surfed, and indelibly etched into the minds of global underground culture.

BeeryMethod is currently based in Seattle, making a strong progressive mark on the face of the Pacific Northwest. When not working on graphics, products, and creative marketing he resides in the studio painting and producing some of the most mind-bending imagery in the art scene. His work runs the gamut from curvy and sexy female portraiture to otherworldly strangely alien landscapes, creepy characters, and urban culture design. Collaboration with fellow artists and creative clientele sparks the fire that burns deep in his radical soul.
